

It was announced today (Monday 4th August 2014) that, for one night only, THE PUB LANDLORD will have a go at reprising his first ever Edinburgh Fringe solo show in the room the character was born in, by accident, back in 1994. Late Lock-In will see the GUV’NOR hold forth in the Pleasance’s 170-seat Cabaret Bar and revisit his 1990’s lone voice crying in the wilderness. Join the GUV as he desperately tries to relearn and remember what he said all those years ago in a special, just-for-the-hell-of-it Edinburgh performance.

As well as this one-off show AL MURRAY has two shows at this year’s Edinburgh Festival Fringe; warming up material for his forthcoming, already extended, national tour, One Man One Guv’nor and hosting his Summer Saloon, a mix of special guests, comedy, variety and music.
